“ My loving son you were the best thing that has ever happened to me and I am so blessed to be able to call myself your momma. I'm so proud of the man you became. You deserved so much more happiness and life, but God saw it was time for you to rest. I find so much comfort and peace knowing you are with your sister now. I will miss you more than you could have ever imagined possible. I'll cherish every memory we ever made. I will always love you big as the whole world. Always. Rest in peace my love. Love your momma

“ My fondest memories of Josh are when he and Sarah were little. I used to love to come get them and spend the weekends with them. We would watch Small Soldiers and eat popcorn. I will always hold these memories in my heart. It does give me peace to know that you and Sarah are reunited. I love you both very much. Aunt Amy

“ My thoughts are prayers are with you. The heartache of losing a child, as you well know, is something you just don't get past. I will keep you all in my prayers.

“ When Josh and his sister Sarah were little kids, I lived just up the road from them. They were the sweetest kids. Josh was a bit protective of his little sister. They came to my house sometimes to hang out and I would give them snacks to eat. Now, they are both gone, but, I am comforted knowing that these two kids are together, walking hand in hand in Heaven as Sarah shows her big brother around and they are both happy and at peace. They will be missed.
