“ Jeremy Lingar was a friend of mine. I just learned of his passing today, as I have been searching for him for the last couple years, and I have not talked to him in about the last 10 years. We became friends in around 2008 when his wife at the time and my wife. At the time we're close friends and introduced us and it was an immediate friendship that had many of Marathon. Xbox PlayStation 2 college football games. We shared a mutual love for sports and I'm rambling here. But I really am shocked right now, and deeply saddened. I worked at Walmart DC and help Jeremy get the job there that I know was a game changer for him at the time and I was always so happy that I was able to help with that, and he helped me immensely down the road. After that when I went through some very troubling times. He was there for me. I've been looking for him for the last couple years with the hopes of posting up and playing some college football on Xbox, and so I'm quite taken back. I learned that he passed in 2021. I love you brother and I want to thank you for being one of the best friends I've ever had. And I am truly going to miss you. And I hope that your life had happiness in these years that we Lost touch. Thank you for being my friend.

“ It’s taken me an entire year to share the memories I had of Jeremy. Jeremy was definitely one of a kind and a life taken far too soon. He was funny, intelligent, and always wanted to do his best to make people proud of him never realizing how many actually were. While the entire world seems to remember me only as Jeremy’s long time high school sweetheart, I have to add that’s a misconception. I had the honor of knowing Jeremy as an amazing friend growing up. who always managed to pop off something to make me laugh and share his true self and emotions. He sometimes appeared to have a hardened exterior due to insecurity which he was open about, but inside had a heart of gold who loved BIG! His love of basketball and music showed through talents. I first became friends with Jeremy in GT in 5th grade and our hardships and life changes young seemed to parallel leading to a friendship that extended throughout school. In going through belongings I got the courage to read all those old notes (some silly and some serious) passed across classes and in the halls at school. In digging privately in my box of keepsakes, my own son caught me and asked to see what I was doing and read one of those hysterical random notes I happened to have had with a pictures. He laughed hard then asked a million questions about those basketball skills and then opinions Jeremy would have about tons of NBA stars including Steph Curry and Kobe. I looked at old pictures of the highly unique young man I knew very well. Over the years life took us in different directions but Jeremy never left my memory no matter how I tried. Over the past year I’ve managed to only remember the truly loving compassionate young man I got to know so well. Most handsome, class favorite, and most athletic were just a few of the labels he was given and were very fitting along with what I would say “class clown” at times. The unmasked genuine Jeremy was one who had the ability to win the hearts of so many loyal friends. My heart breaks for his children remembering our last conversation in the middle of WalMart Jeremy talked so much about and how he wanted to make them proud and we laughed about parenting struggles overall. Tonight I miss the days years ago of watching my friend sporting #33 proudly to give his all on the ball court and laughing or grinning as my loud voice carried in cheering for him. I know Jeremy loved God, prayed often, and asked for forgiveness for many mistakes that weren't even fault of his own. He was a gentle giant in every way, who at a young age overcame and faced more obstacles than many knew.

Rest In Peace Jeremy and know that from a distance I loved the amazing friend you were and was a giant fan of CHS's #33 State Champ always. I will sleep knowing that "One Sweet Day" I'll get to see you again and likely talk over each other about our kids & crazy life circumstances.

Jeremy, I often pray for your children and that God fills their heart with happy memories of you and finds a way to show them just how much I know you loved them.

Love always, Amanda
