“ Jimmy was a kind gentle man. As a young man he worked hard and helped take care of his younger sisters and brother. The happiest part of his life was after he found the love of his life, Mert. Fly high Jim!
You were loved!

We love you Mert and pray for Comfort from our Heavenly Father. Not a kinder or gentler man than Jim. We loved him, too.

Jimmy was my cousin and the most amazing man I have ever known. But he was also so humble and unassuming that he would never have believed me if I'd have told him that while he was living.

He wasn't cultured or refined. But there aren't many with as kind and giving a heart as Jimmy had. I don't think he hardly ever thought of himself. If he saw a friend or family or a neighbor in need then he was there, helping out. No questions asked, and no matter what he was letting go at home. And he wouldn't take credit for it either. But that was just "Jimmy."

He never went to college. But he was so darn intelligent that to me that he almost seemed like a magician sometimes. I saw him do things I would not have believed anyone could.

Like the time he and I broke down out in middle of the Texas plains 30 years ago. What he did there on the side of I-40 with a file and a sledge hammer shouldn't have been possible without a precision machine shop. But he did it, and I was so amazed by it that even now most of my friends have heard the story.

Farewell Jimmy. I know you are on to bigger and better things now. But I'll always treasure the memories we had growing up and as adults. It was an honor and a privilege to have known you, and I thank God for it.

Sending prayers to his family. Jimmy was one of the best managers I have ever worked for and just a kind, hard-working man overall. He always helped people in need, even when he wasn't feeling his best.
